D., was born in London on February 10, 1791, died on September 24, 1868, and was buried in St. Pauls Cathedral, of which for the last nineteen years of his life he was Dean. He was the youngest son of Sir Francis Milman, physician to George III, and was educated at Greenwich, Eton and Oxford. Although as a scholarly poet he had a considerable reputation, his literary fame rests chiefly on his fine historical works, of which fifteen volumes appeared, including the History of the Jews, the History of Christianity to the Abolition of Paganism in the Roman Empire, and the History of Latin Christianity to the Pontificate of Nicholas V. The...

Reviews

These kinds of publication is the greatest pdf available. Better then never, though i am quite late in start reading this one. Once you begin to read the book, it is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding.
