Andrew Can Ski is about a boy with a disability who is trying to find his way in the world. It is about his overcoming adversity and finding something he is good at. Andrew has trouble walking because of his Cerebral Palsy. He found skiing at the age of seven and with great determination, learned how to ski. Andrew Can Ski tells about Andrew s amazing journey from discovering skiing, needing to hold onto a pole for three years, to skiing on his own and becoming good enough to try and make the United States Adaptive Alpine Race Team. Andrew Haraghey continues to train and hopes to represent the United States some day in Disabled World races. His first podium finish in a national race in Park City, UT was a major stepping stone. Read about how he got to this place and overcame his Cerebral Palsy.
