B-281456 MAP that funds do not substitute for promotional expenditures recipients would have otherwise undertaken with their own funds. According to FAS officials, no recipients have been disqualified from the program because they failed to meet the certification requirement. FAS Compliance Review Staff ( CRS ) regularly audits the participants that MAP receive direct funding and verifies that these participants and the recipients they fund have completed their certification statements. To determine whether assistance ( generic or brand-name ) has not MAP supplanted a participants foreign market development expenditures, the CRS Director of told us that they review the participants foreign market development budget and verify that it is spending at least as much as it spent the previous year. also considers variations in a recipients CRS promotional strategies within a country and in new markets. According to CRS the Director, reviews supporting documentation each year for about 5 percent of all indirect recipients ( 15-20 companies and cooperatives ). MAP The Director reported that it is difficult to verify whether funds supplement a participants own funds for foreign market development activities because it is hard to determine what a participant would have spent in the absence of MAP funds. According to FAS officials, they have no evidence based on the CRS audits that any participant has falsely certified regarding additionality. Nonetheless, a private consulting firm has been hired to review the effectiveness of, and one component of the work plan includes a MAP section that addresses the issue of whether funds supplement or MAP supplant the...
