Excerpt: .save those who escaped from sinking vessels. The honor of the sea as interpreted by the allied nations has always included aid to the shipwreck-ed, even to pick up survivors from enemy war vessels that have been destroyed and the landing of citizens of neutral nations in the nearest possible port. Daring rescues at sea are the rule, rather than the exception, in reading of the work of allied vessels. When our men were crossing the submarine chasers kept their each convoy and did their best to protect the larger vessels on which men and supplies were being laced about the outskirts of Saving the Survivors In a tempestuous sea destroyers are saving the survivors from a fast-sinking liner The British destroyer Mounsey saved 600 lives when our troopship, the Otranto, was torpedoed. The Guard of the Narrow seas While towing a Swedish barque from Rotterdam to...
