Further, in 1884, Bang, at the Copenhagen International Medical Congress, made known the results of experiments on the milk from tuberculous cows, in which he was able to demonstrate the presence of numerous tubercle bacilli. Taking these two factors in turn, one cannot but be struck by the difference of opinion, as regards the occurrence of abdominal tuberculosis in children, held and expressed by physicians, on the one hand, and by those who have frequent opportunities of making examinations of the bodies of young patients who have succumbed to some form or other of tuberculosis, on the other. So long as no such microorganism as the bacillus tuberculosis had ever been found growing under natural conditions outside of a living animal...
